Public Information Chair

It is clear that we cannot be everything for everybody. We are a recovery organization whose members meet regularly to help each other stay clean. It is all right for us to decline a request that is outside our fellowship's primary purpose. It is also reasonable for us to decline a request that is within our purpose if we do not have the time, money, and members to honor the request. The important thing to remember is that we respond! Failure to respond, even if we intend to decline a request, demonstrates a lack of reliability on behalf of our fellowship. To carry a clear C.M.A. message to the public, we as members need to have a clear knowledge of our traditions. It takes practice to learn the traditions and understand how to apply them. We have reserved a portion of this guide for a discussion of the traditions and how they impact PI work. Our objective in doing public information work should be simply to spread the word that the fellowship is available, that it works, and that it's free.

Here are some frequently used methods to accomplish this:

1. Meeting List(s) — If there is more than one meeting in your community, creating and maintaining a listing of meeting information should be your highest priority. This list should contain information such as the day, time, and location (a street address is preferred), and whether the meeting is open to the public. It may also contain information such as the type of meeting (step study, speaker, or discussion, for example), whether it is smoking or non-smoking, and any other special information. Meeting lists should be updated on a regular basis. It's our responsibility to make sure that newcomers to our program are given accurate information on how to find us when they reach out for help.
2. Posters (Flyers) These are notices used to inform the public about how and where to contact us. It is critical that when we post these notices, we first obtain permission to do so. Some possible posting locations are detoxification facilities, hospitals, police stations, schools and universities, churches or missionary outreach offices, government service offices, drug treatment centers, or other places where addicts seeking recovery or people who help addicts might congregate. We need to stress that "attraction rather than promotion" is an important concept when doing public information work such as this. Good judgment should be used when creating and posting these notices. We need to refrain from provocative, promotional statements or artwork that may convey a negative image of C.M.A. or appear to be promotional. Even how and where we post notices should be evaluated before we follow through on the project. A simple message explaining that we are available and how to contact us is the desired approach. Contents of printed media, such as bulletins, posters, and newspaper ads, usually consist of an attention-grabbing statement or question, followed by information on how to contact the local meeting, group, or phone line. As an example, a bulletin, poster, or newspaper ad might read as follows:

3. Introductory Mailings — We can introduce the program to professionals in health organizations and social services, and to others who deal with addicts, by mailing them information about our fellowship. A mailing should consist of a letter to explain who you are, where you can be contacted, and some basic information about Crystal Meth Anonymous in your community, including the fact that we are a part of a worldwide fellowship. Normally we include a local meeting list and, if possible, some C.M.A. pamphlets. If appropriate, the cover letter might also mention that members are available to speak with professionals and/or their staff, if your local C.M.A. community is able to fulfill this type of request. Pamphlets such as: What is the Crystal Meth Anonymous program, What is a Commitment? The Seventh Tradition and the C.M.A. White Booklet; are good choices to introduce others to our program. You may find that Am I a Tweaker? For the Newcomer, and Sponsorship are also helpful. We acknowledge that not all of these pamphlets may be available in your language. Use what you have. If you don't have any translated pamphlets available, you may be able to use pamphlets in another language for professionals. Your local PI committee can create a standard "packet" for mailings and for distribution during presentations. Be realistic regarding costs and choice of pamphlets, whether mailing them or just passing them out at a presentation.
4. Presentations — You may receive requests to give a presentation about Crystal Meth Anonymous to professionals at an institution or to an organization at a conference. You may also receive an invitation to set up booths or tables at a public event to provide some basic information about C.M.A. If you agree that it is appropriate and you have the resources to do it, remember: Do presentations with others. To help establish a good impression, start with a good appearance. Avoid using obscenities. Be aware of the composition of your audience. If you are addressing non-addicts, as is usually the case, remember that some C.M.A. language commonly used and understood by members of the fellowship in our meetings is not typical outside those meetings. Too much "program talk" or emphasis on the finer details of our recovery program is simply a foreign language to non-addicts and therefore should be avoided. While some personal disclosure is encouraged, the focus must remain on a clear C.M.A. message. What is important is not who we are as individuals but how we became clean addicts through the Twelve Steps and Twelve Traditions of C.M.A. Avoid telling "war stories." We are there to speak about how we found a new way to live free from active addiction through C.M.A., not how it was when we were using. Our attractions are: it works, it's free, and we are available to the crystal meth addict that still suffers.
5. Public Service Announcements (PSAs) — PSAs are notices that reach the public by way of press, radio, and television. Public service announcements are commonly posted or broadcast by various media in areas where members of the public are allowed to announce items of interest to the community, free of charge. This is an accepted method of informing the public about C.M.A. and is not viewed as a direct contribution by an outside source. However, announcements that must contain a sponsoring organization's name ("this ad presented by the ABC Company") are unacceptable in light of our traditions. Printed PSAs can be created by the local PI committee, but we caution local committees against creating their own videos. The cost and process involved in creating a video PSA can greatly distract a PI committee from carrying the message, as well as strain the resources of the local fellowship. C.M.A. World Services has conference-approved scripts for radio and television PSAs which can be adapted for use in your community. The scripts are contained in the Guide to Public Information, and are available through C.M.A. World Services.
6. Phonelines — A telephone number may be established in your community as a contact for addicts seeking recovery and for receiving inquiries about our fellowship from the public. You should establish a phonenumber service only when you are physically and financially able to support it. A lot of hard work and responsibilities are involved with a phonenumber, and the decision to start one should be taken seriously. Think of the consequences if an addict seeking recovery or a professional called and the telephone number was disconnected: an addict would continue to suffer, and a poor impression would be given to the professional. Information on starting and maintaining a phonenumber is covered in a separate guide available from C.M.A. World Services.

7. Learning Days and Workshops — These are an internal service offered to the members of our fellowship. Usually a few dedicated members will set aside time to share their experience with other interested members and C.M.A. groups on how to do some of the basic work of PI committees. One of the responsibilities of a PI committee is to inform the fellowship at large about the committee's function in service and how to get in touch with the committee if anyone is contacted by the public and the media. More information on this topic is contained in the Guide to Public Information.
